specialized conducting cells carry the action potentials at a high rate from the sa to the av node, and then from the av node to the rest of the ventricular cells sketching the sweep of the terrain to be considered and raising the issues that are paramount is a difficult feat to pull off when considering vast, complex interconnected human systems agricultural scientists are now demonstrating that staple crops can be modified in several ways at the breeding stage, with great nutritional benefit.